The Network for Developing European Studies in the Caucasus (DESCnet) is happy to call for application for the 2018 Summer School. DESCnet was established as a Jean Monnet Network designed with the aim to enhance the level of European Studies in the Caucasus region. The network is a Consortium of 9 partner universities from Europe and the wider Caucasus region and represents a novel approach towards promoting the idea of European Studies in the Caucasus. The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Yeditepe University (Turkey) will host the Istanbul Summer School in 2018, one of the main DESCnet activities. It will be held in July 2018 at the premises of Yeditepe University, located in Istanbul.

The Summer School will last be between the 9th and 13th of July 2018 and will provide a comprehensive knowledge on the different aspects and the key challenges for regional cooperation in the South Caucasus in the context of comparative regionalisms. It will seek to discuss the answers for the following questions: Which challenges face the South Caucasus and how can we deal with them to move the regional cooperation forward? Can the obstacles to the full-fledged regional integration be understood through the analysis of diverging foreign policy of nations? How are the new dynamics of regional politics being (re)shaped in the aftermath of the establishment of the Eurasian Union? What role do the powers in the region, such as the EU, Russia, and Turkey play and how their power and influence are defined in complex settings of the South Caucasus?

The lectures will focus on these key questions, aiming to illuminate and analyze how various examples of regional cooperation (i.e., EU, Eurasian Union, ECO, BSEC, GUAM) overlap in the South Caucasus. The Summer School will also encourage further discussion about how the foreign policy orientation of the three South Caucasus countries explains the regional dynamics.

The lectures will be given by distinguished academics, experienced practitioners, and recognized local experts dealing with the politics of the South Caucasus, the wider Black Sea area, European studies. The Summer School will serve as an opportunity for advanced undergraduate and post-graduate researchers interested in the South Caucasus.

About Yeditepe University

Yeditepe University was founded in 1996 by the Istanbul Education and Culture Foundation (ISTEK). In line with Atatürk's principles and with the contribution of pioneering and distinguished academic and administrative staff, Yeditepe University aims to educate students who are inquisitive, innovative, well-equipped with technological skills, well-acquainted with world culture, equipped with all the qualifications required by the business world and who have a solid identity. With its up-to-date academic programs and training, Yeditepe University offers an education compatible with the expectations of the information age. Yeditepe University carries out its academic mission through the School of Applied Sciences, and 13 faculties namely the Faculties of Dentistry, Pharmacy, Education, Arts and Sciences, Law, Economics and Administrative Sciences, Communication, Engineering, Architecture, Health Sciences, and Medicine, entailing 64 undergraduate programs. 74 Master's degree programs, and 33 PhD. programs are also offered under the Graduate Schools of Atatürk's Principles and History of Revolution, Educational Sciences, Natural and Applied Sciences, Health Sciences and Social Sciences. Located in "26 August Campus", Yeditepe University, an English-medium university, educates young people coming from every corner of Turkey as well as international students. Students especially from countries of the African continent and the Caucasus widely prefer Yeditepe University. One of the four Confucius Institutes in Turkey has been founded in the Yeditepe Campus creating opportunities for local students to visit People's Republic of China and for Chinese students and scholars to collaborate with their peers in Turkey.

About the Department of Political Science and International Relations

Yeditepe University is part of a world-class city centrally located in a geo-politically strategic region with easy access to Europe, the Middle East and Asia. The Department of Political Science and International Relations aims to recruit students from the neighboring regions in addition to Turkish nationals, and educate them in the fields of domestic and international politics with skills and abilities to be employed by either the public or private sector at home or abroad. Our department has been running two graduate programs, one at masters, the other at the PhD level since 2004. All three programs welcome students from various countries.

The curriculum not only embraces an interdisciplinary approach but also allows room for specialization through elective courses, language classes, and minor and double major programs. One of the specific characteristics of the curriculum of the Department at Yeditepe, is the regional courses that cover the Caucasus, USA, Latin America, Middle East, Africa and the Balkans. The courses are designed beyond the classic lecture format so that students can actively participate in classes through presentations, discussions, projects and so forth. Department of Political Science and International Relations is rich in its faculty members profile. It is proud to entail internationally renowned scholars such as Feroz Ahmad as well as promising young scholars.

Summer School Objectives

The objective of the course is to enable students to develop ways of putting the politics and economy of the South Caucasus into a framework in which they can compare and contrast the South Caucasus with other major examples of regional integration existing/emerging in the wider neighborhood. The South Caucasus remains to be one of the problematic areas of the globe where regional cooperation has not taken its roots due to the territorial claims between the countries. It thus aims to introduce students to the selected aspects of the integration processes encompassing the South Caucasus and provide the participants with an understanding of the current challenges for regional cooperation.

Competency Description

Once the course is completed, students will: (i) be able to apply and relate conceptual and theoretical knowledge that underpins the course to the real economic and political processes of the South Caucasus; (ii) have a better understanding of the historical evolution as well as present positioning of the South Caucasus in the global and regional context; (iii) have developed a nuanced understanding of the key issues in considering future cooperation in the area.

Teaching Methodology

The course will be taught through a combination of lectures, discussions and presentations. Students are responsible to read the course materials carefully and be ready for discussions before coming to class. The seminars will be discussion-focused; therefore, active participation in class discussions is expected and will be a crucial determinant for student evaluation. Lecture and seminar attendance as well as the field trips are mandatory, specifically, to be eligible for receiving credits.

ECTS credits and evaluation

All attendants can receive the certificate of attendance upon written request at the time of application. Upon successful completion of the Summer School, attendants will be eligible to receive 6 ECTS credits. Academic credits will be awarded using a 100-point scale subject to the attendance, active participation, presentations (individually or in groups) and completion of tasks will be necessary.
